Hendon Elected To Unexpired Term At MSU

Robert L. Hendon, associate professor of agriculture, has been elected by his colleagues at Murray State University to fill an unexpired term as the faculty representative on the board of regents.

He defeated Dr. James A. Parr, chairman of the department of modern foreign languages, in a runoff election today and will serve in the post from July 1 of this year to April 29, 1971.

Vote totals released by William Gantt, dean of admissions and chairman of the faculty election committee, are: Hendon, 179, and Parr, 85.

The balloting was the third in a series of elections to determine a non-voting faculty representative on the board of regents as required by Kentucky law. An original field of eight candidates was reduced to three in the initial election April 30 and cut down to two in the first runoff May 7.

Hendon will step into the post now held by Dr. William G. Read, chairman of the physics department. Elected by the faculty to a three-year term in the spring of 1968, Read will vacate the post July 1 when he becomes vice president for academic affairs and dean of the faculties.

Gantt said the 264 faculty members who voted in the deciding runoff represent 80 percent of the 328 eligible to cast a ballot. The law specifies that only faculty members of assistant professor rank or above may vote.

A new faculty representative will be elected next spring for a three-year term on the board. Except for two years as director of marketing with the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, Hendon has been on the staff at Murray State continuously since 1947.

The Murray Board of Education, at a regular session meeting last night, reviewed all bid proposals for the proposed new high school and also examined Architect Gingle's recommendation concerning the bids.

"After careful study of the bid documents and architect's recommendation, the Board by unanimous action accepted the bid of the Hal Perry Construction Company of Benton, Kentucky, as the lowest and best bid of those presented and will award a contract to this firm when the bonds are sold," Superintendent Fred Schultz said.

The Board also accepted the alternate that was asked for in the bid, this alternate being a tartan surface on the gym floor. The bid for this alternate was $8,830.

Schultz expressed appreciation to all of those that have aided in the planning and progress of this school and gave a special commendation to high school Principal Eli Alexander and his staff for developing the educational plan; members of the Murray State University staff for their assistance; the Citizens Advisory Committee; and members of the Buildings and Grounds Division of the State Department of Education. A spokesman for the Board commented that the fine work of these groups was reflected in the excellent bids which were received.

Stein Brothers and Boyce, the fiscal agent for the Murray Board of Education, has been directed to proceed with all necessary work to prepare the bond ordinance and take all necessary action in order to sell the bonds at the earliest possible date in June.

In other action the Board again selected the Peoples Bank and the Bank of Murray as co-depositaries for school funds for a two-year period beginning June 1, 1970.

In addition, they accepted a letter of resignation from Mr. Charles Archer, who is resigning to take a position as School Principal with the McKenzie, Tennessee schools.

Two Students Killed Today In Mississippi

Two students were killed and at least 11 other persons were injured early today in what police said was a return of sniper fire during a violent demonstration at mostly black Jackson State College in Jackson, Miss. National Guardsmen went to the school.

Police said the deaths occurred when snipers fired at police and state troopers from a girls' dormitory and the officers returned the fire. Officials agreed that "some shots" were fired before police began shooting. Police stormed the building brought out several cots. The dead were male students.

For the first time since four students were killed at Kent State University, National Guard troops were ordered into an Ohio college community today after Ohio University students fought with police in downtown Athens. Dr. Claude Sowle, university president, ordered the school closed until the beginning of the summer quarter.

An additional 800 guardsmen were ordered to the University of Maryland in College Park Thursday night after 500 state police and guardsmen settled with 1,500 students who had blocked traffic on U.S. 1.

Students at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale voted 8,224 to 3,675 to keep the school closed. SIU was closed earlier in the week after student demonstrations at the university president's residence.

Student Describes Life In Thailand For Kiwanis Club

Steve Wilson, a Murray State student from Wickliffe, told of living as an International Farm Youth Exchange Student in Thailand for six months at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club last night.

Wilson showed slides which illustrated much of the culture, religion and living conditions of the people of this country. "They are proud of having always been a free people," he said.

The young student lived with five families during his stay in Thailand.

He said that 94% of the people of Thailand are Buddhist and all men are expected to serve for six months as Buddhist monks.

Four representatives from the Campus Crusade for Christ gave personal testimonies at the meeting also.

Stan Evanko, Rose Russell, David Haley and Leah Workman, all Murray State University students, explained the purpose of their organization. "People need to stand up for Christ," Evanko said. "They talk about being Christians but find it difficult to talk about Jesus Christ. He was either what He said He was or the biggest fraud there ever was," he added.

Two members of Circle K, Douglas Knott and Bruce Bradford, were visitors of the club. Next week's meeting will be a picnic at the City Park, with members, families and guests attending.

No Injuries Reported In Two Car Collision

Damage to the Powell car was on the left back fender and back bumper, and to the Gregory car on the left back door and fender.

Dr. Henry Franklin Paschall Leads Church Through New Building Program

By Gale Garrison

The city of Nashville, Tenn. is filled with many landmarks, that are familiar not only to the people who live there, but to the thousands of tourists who travel to Music City every year. Just a few of these are:

—The Ryman Auditorium; home of the world renowned Grand Ole Opry, which is the most popular drawing card not only in Nashville but the state of Tennessee, and much of the south.

—The Hermitage; the Colonial home of Andrew Jackson.

—The Parthenon; built as part of the 1897 Centennial, it graces a hill in Centennial Park.

—The War Memorial Building; erected in memory of the men from Tennessee who served in the Armed Forces during World War I.

—The Supreme Court Building; home of Tennessee's highest court.

—The First Baptist Church Tower at Seventh and Broad; built as a part of the church in 1886, and preserved through the ignominy of a native of Calloway County — Dr. Henry Franklin Paschall.

He spent his first 12 years of education at Puryear. In 1940 just six miles west of Hazel on the Kentucky side of the State Line Road. However his parents, Cletus T. and Eva Paschall moved to the Tennessee side when he was only three years old.

He accepted the call to the ministry and entered Union University, where he spent his next four years.

Paschall then attended the seminary in Louisville where he received his Doctoral Degree.

During his early days as a minister he was pastor of several churches in western Kentucky and Tennessee.

Churches in Tennessee included North Fork, Oak Grove (his "home church"), Mt. Zion, and Maplewood. He was also pastor of Locust Grove in Calloway.

In 1951 he accepted a call from the First Baptist Church in Bowling Green.

While there the church launched and completed a new building program.

Dr. Paschall stayed at Bowling Green until 1955. In the early part of 1956 he was called by the First Baptist Church in Nashville. A call he accepted.

Dr. Paschall is also former chairman of the Southern Baptist Convention.

He again spearheaded a building drive, which was to change the downtown area as much, if not more, than the city itself.

Highest Interest Rate Ever On City Bond Sale

The Murray City Council last night approved a lone bid for the purchase of $1,100,000 Murray Water & Sewer Bonds at an interest rate of 7.4645 per cent, the highest rate that any bonds have ever been sold by the city.

The bid to buy the bonds was made by the firm of J. J. B. Hilliard, W. L. Lyons & Company and others and was the only one submitted.

George Sullivan of the firm of Stein Bros. and Boyce, fiscal agent for the system, told the council that the interest rate may seem high, but this reflected the bond market of today. He pointed out that the city of Detroit recently sold a large bond issue at a higher rate. Mayor Ellis pointed out that Franklin, Kentucky just sold a $300,000 bond issue at a higher rate also.

Other councilmen commented that with the projects which are planned by the Murray Water & Sewer System, which are considered vital, that they felt the city should go ahead with the bond sale.

Among the projects are a sixteen inch water main from 18th Street to the Johnny Robertson Road, a new stand pipe on the Johnny Robertson Road, a new sewer interceptor, expansion of the treatment plant and a number of other projects considered necessary for growth.

Mr. Sullivan told the council that with the new rate for water and sewer service, the bond issue could be paid off with no curtailment of services or threat to the system. The system will have approximately $300,000 net revenue with half of this going toward retirement of bond issues.

This is a healthy situation, Mr. Sullivan continued. Littleton J. Pardue, representing J. J. B. Hilliard, W. L. Lyons & Co. was present at the meeting last night.

The meeting last night consumed three hours in one of the longest meetings thus far.

One hour of this time was taken with a hearing for Fire Captain Jerry Jones who was charged with taking a trip to Oklahoma and turning in the report that he was going to be sick. Captain Jones took one "Kelly" day and turned in one day "sick", to make the trip. A Kelly day is given firemen two days a month and is in effect a day off, two days a month.

While on the trip Captain Jones actually got sick and was under the care of a doctor. He was represented at the hearing by Donald Jones, local attorney. Captain Jones said it was common practice for a fireman to report in sick when he actually was not sick. Other firemen privately said this was not a widespread practice, however it did undoubtedly occur at times.

Pupil Accident Insurance

Growing in popularity are insurance policies that cover the schoolchild in case of an accident. Since the idea is relatively new, a number of legal questions have arisen—notably, as to accidents that happen somewhere between the school and the home.

Consider this case: A schoolboy, starting homeward after school, decided to make a slight detour in order to accompany a friend on a shopping errand. During the detour, the boy suffered a painful fall. In due course, his parents tried to collect on a student accident policy, claiming that it covered their son while he was travelling to or from school. But the insurance company denied liability.

"Our policy did cover him on the way home from school," the company conceded in court, "but only if he was going 'directly' home. Here, although he was going home, he was not going directly. Therefore, this accident is not covered by the policy."

Nevertheless, the court decided the company would have to pay off. "The deviation was slight," said the judge. "A practical and sensible interpretation of 'directly' will permit such a deviation. The company must have known the propensity of children not to follow a straight line."

On the other hand, there are limits as to how far afield the child can stray before losing his protection. In another case, a youngster fell out of a tree and fractured his arm. At the time of the mishap, school had been over for almost an hour. Furthermore, the boy, instead of moving toward home, had actually gone some distance in the opposite direction. In these circumstances, a court ruled that the insurance protection did not stretch that far.

Of course, the terms of the individual policy may make all the difference. In another case, parents tried to collect on a school accident policy when their son got hurt right at home.

Obviously, the accident had nothing to do with school. Yet, the policy stated in so many words that it covered the boy on a 24-hour basis. Following the plain terms of the policy, a court granted the parent's claim.

By United Press International Today is Friday, May 15th, the 135th day of 1970 with 230 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase.

The morning stars are Saturn and Mercury.

The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1862 Congress created the Agriculture Department.

In 1918 the first regular air mail service was established between Washington, Philadelphia and New York.

In 1930 United Air Lines employed the first stewardess, Miss Ellen Church.

In 1969 Justice Abe Fortas resigned from the U.S. Supreme Court.

A thought for the day: American Novelist William Faulkner said, "I believe that man will not merely endure; he will prevail."

Fractured French

PARIS (UPI) — Franglais — which means saucing up English with a few Frenchisms, or vice versa — holds great appeal for young visitors to Paris, just as it horrifies French elders.

Every one, for instance, understands "le weekend" or "le self-service," simplified sometimes to "le self" and referring to a budget cafeteria. Le scotch, le big, le mini, le maxi and le sex appeal are self-explanatory.

Sometimes you can turn English into Franglais by adding the French article "le" and a Gallic twist of the tongue — le gangster is pronounced "gong-stair," for instance, while le cowboy becomes "coo-boy."

Days Of Spring

Fresh fresh currents flow along an old road and made eddies not seen before

Currents are pleasant because new warmth, but not as warm as will be Christmas was fulfilled a stocking even old St. Nick can't fill

Fresh fresh buds grow on the tips of old branches making the whole tree new

Buds are pleasant because scars are covered and blemishes hidden

Fall's promise fulfilled that Mother Nature would kiss her children

Fresh fresh life stirs records play in the brain begatters begat

New life is pleasant because promises are made real and hopes, not in vain

Creation's promise fulfilled even before the eyes of the sceptic's pencil

Students War For Peace

Dad said that he could not understand why students made war over war. Dad said that he didn't like war either, and he wasn't going to fight his neighbor in the name of being against it. Dad said that even though I was little, I knew better than that.

Dad said that a Communist general and a Campus general wasn't much different if they destroyed to get their way. He said that both names started with capital C's and ended in shame. Dad said, "he didn't know what happened to human compassion." He said that he knew that communism didn't think much of it, but he didn't know till now that many young people in America had lost it too. "Compassion doesn't kill, it won't even make you sick," dad said. I listened to my dad and decided that he's standing taller right now, than I've ever seen him. Dad went on to say, "compassion didn't cause rock bruises, from burns from bottles, or billy club hits, or bullet holes, from any direction." Dad said that he wasn't very smart either, but he knew you couldn't end war by making war. "The whole time has been trying that for a long time, and it was about time that we all learned that that wouldn't work," dad said.

Dad said, "he believed it would be good to lay down the rocks, bottles, clubs and guns, and spray the word 'war' with the perfume of compassion. Dad said, 'the only thing he's really afraid of, is that the world's capitals have forgotten how to make perfume.'"

"Oh me," I just remembered, "I lost dad's best knife. I'm little and I sure hope dad has a little perfume left for me."

Earth Day

'Twas the night before Earth day and all through the house, Not a creature was stirring, not even the mouse . . . because he was dead.

The garbage was stacked by the chimney with care, in hopes that the garbage man soon would be there. The children were choking and struggling in bed while visions of clean air danced in their heads.

Mama in her gas mask and I in mine too, were gasping from smog which was making us blue.

When out on the lawn there rose such a clatter, I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter.

Away to the window I flew like a flash, tore open the shutter and threw out the sash (littering the lawn).

And what to my wondering eyes did appear but a miniature sleigh and eight dead reindeer.

When a little old driver so tired and so slow I knew in a moment it must be Old Joe (the garbage man).

As I drew in my head and was turning around in through the litter he came with a bound.

He said not a word but went straight to his work, he cleaned up the household and turned with a jerk.

He twisted his head and grabbed hold of his toe and in a loud voice said, "pollution must go."

Then he sprang to his sleigh to his team gave a whistle, the smog cleared away and he went like a missile.

"And I heard him exclaim as he drove out of sight, 'Happy Earth Day To All . . . You Won't Die Tonight.'"

This wonderful poem is by Tommy Pasco, a 6th grade student at Carter Elementary School. This was written in Mrs. Opal Howard's Science Class.

Washington Window

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An ancient fable, relevant to our time, tells of three blind men trying to determine, by sense of touch, what an elephant is like.

One felt the elephant's flank, and said, "an elephant is like a wall." Another grasped the elephant's trunk, and said, "An elephant is like a vine." The third groped about the elephant's legs, and said "an elephant is like a grove of trees."

The moral is that an object, event or situation may be perceived by different people in different ways.

Take, for example, the war in Indochina. A college student born in 1950 has been conditioned by the experience of his generation to view it in one light, while his father, born in 1925, has been conditioned by the experience of his generation to view it in an altogether different light.

Father Remembers Lessons The father vividly remembers the lessons America learned from World War II—That security cannot be achieved through isolation or appeasement, that you can't have freedom for yourself unless you're willing to help defend the freedom of others.

From this perspective, he sees Vietnam as an episode in a long, costly and essentially noble struggle to prevent totalitarian governments from achieving bit-by-bit conquest of the world.

Within the son's lifetime, America has always been the dominant power, bigger and mightier than any nation in history, possessing and sometimes brandishing a nuclear arsenal capable of rendering the entire planet uninhabitable.

Perspective Is Different From this perspective, Indochina is seen not as a frontier where America is unselfishly defending freedom, but as a poor little country being destroyed in an attempt to impose America's will on a situation that is none of our business.

Neither generation can be persuaded by any amount of argument that its viewpoint is wrong. But it would be a great gain if both could come to understand that there are two ways of looking at this matter, and that each has some historical claim to validity.

Then, perhaps, the middle-aged would be a bit less glib about equating Cambodia with Dunquerque, Bataan and the Kasserine Pass. And the young might be less inclined to demolish dialogue by proclaiming that this war is clearly imperialistic and morally indefensible.

The thing is: We are there, for reasons which are not altogether holy nor altogether wicked. So what do we do now? When and how can we be honorably withdrawn? These are questions on which neither generation has a monopoly of wisdom.

Dodgers Beat Houston To

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

Rookie Sandy Vance polished something that night that not too many pitchers have been able to achieve over the last 10 years. He bested ace righthander Marichal as the Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants and he missed by only 1-inning of tossing a complete game.

The young righthander, 3-1, allowed only one run in five innings over the first five innings but was chased in the ninth when the Giants scored twice on a home run by Johnson and a run-scoring single by Hal Lanier.

Jim Brewer came on in the final out but it took away from Vance's fine performance. The Giants had averaging close to six runs a game this season.

The Dodgers, meanwhile, jumped on Marichal for six and five runs in the third and chased the veteran the game for only the time in their confrontation with the Giants over the past 11 years. Marichal, apparently still not at strength after a recent illness, was beaten by the Dodgers only the 13th time in his career. He has beaten them 30 times.

In other National League games, Houston beat San Diego, 3-1; and St. Louis

Edwards-Lee Vows Are Read

Mr. and Mrs. James Robert Lee

The Elm Grove Baptist Church was the setting Saturday, April 11, for the lovely wedding of Mrs. Anna Lou French Edwards and James Robert Lee.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Augustus French of Mill Shoals, Illinois and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Earl Lee of Route Six, Murray.

The impressive double ring ceremony was performed at 3:30 o'clock by the Reverends Leonard Cole and W. A. Farmer.

Proceeding the ceremony, a program of nuptial music was played at the organ by Kim Pennington. The vocalist, Mrs. Ann Doran, sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The wedding party assembled before an altar arrangement of baskets of white gladioli, chrysanthemums and greenery. Brass candleholders holding white taper candles completed the setting. Hurricane lamps, adorned with red and greenery marked the family pews. The candles were lit by Thomas Reesor of Columbia, Tennessee and Robert McGaughey of Murray.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose for her wedding a formal gown of Aquamarine silk chiffon over silk peau de soie. The empire bodice was defined with a demitied belt of three tones of aquamarine satin. The back interest was defined with a wattle train that flowed gracefully as she descended the aisle. The long bishop sleeves were very bouffant and gossamer sheer, caught to a narrow band of self fabric at the wrist. The skirt was softly gathered at the waist that created gentle folds in the skirt. Her headress was a Juliet cap of matching aquamarine softly beaded in miniature pearls, from which a chapel length veil of matching illusion was attached. She carried a bouquet fashioned of white roses, stephanotis and centered with an orchid. Her only jewelry was a baby pearl necklace, a gift from the groom.

Miss Judi French, sister of the bride was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Misses Marian Pollard and Jane French. They were attired in a deeper tone of the bride's chosen color scheme, aquamarine, and their gowns were styled identically to the bride with the exception of the train. Back streamers of the variegated shades of aquamarine flowed from the back empire of their gowns. Their headpieces were a cluster of matching blue silk petals to which a shoulder length veil of illusion was attached. They carried bouquets of roses.

Wayne Lee, brother of the groom from Little Rock, Arkansas served as best man. The groomsmen were William McEwen of Columbia, Tennessee and Thomas Adams, Miami, Florida. Guests were ushered by Hogan Bryan of Louisville and Jimmy Rose, Murray. Master Jack Lee, nephew of the groom served as ring bearer. The men wore tuxedos and boutonnieres of white.

The mother of the bride chose a soft lilac peau de soie dress and coat ensemble, adorned with a silver beaded collar and shoes to match. Her pillbox hat was also soft lilac peau de soie. The mother of the groom chose a matching pink and lavender dress and coat ensemble. Each mother wore an orchid.

The grandmothers attending, Mrs. Herschel French and Mrs. Milburn Holland were presented corsages of daisies and baby chrysanthemums.

The guest register was kept by Miss Joan Pollard of Evansville, Indiana.

Reception Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Murray Woman's Club House. Those serving were Mrs. Wayne Lee, Little Rock, Arkansas, Mrs. Jimmy Cox, Fairfield, Illinois, Mrs. Karl Harrison, Benton, and Miss Joan Pollard, of Evansville, Indiana.

After the reception the couple left on an unannounced wedding trip. For traveling, the bride wore a pink peau de soie dress and coat ensemble with black accessories. She wore an orchid corsage from her bridal bouquet.

Out of town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Cox, Mrs. Glen French, Fairfield, Illinois, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Funkhouser, Mrs. Margaret Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wheeler and Mrs. Anna French, Mill Shoals, Illinois, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Pollard, Burnt Prairie, Illinois, Mrs. M. J. Bisig Jr., and Logan Bryan, Louisville, Mrs. Jay Curtin and Bryan, Decatur, Illinois, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Chandler, Memphis, Tennessee, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Brien and Mr. and Mrs. Larry McIntosh, Mayfield, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bisig, Indianapolis, Indiana, Thomas Reesor, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill McEwen, Columbia, Tennessee, Tom Adams, Miami, Florida, Miss Joan Pollard, Evansville, Indiana and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Lee, Little Rock, Arkansas.

Rehearsal Dinner Mr. and Mrs. William Earl Lee, parents of the groom were hosts for the rehearsal dinner held on Friday evening, April 10, in the Red Room of the Holiday Inn.

The T-shaped tables were centered with lovely arrangements of the spring season. Covers were laid for twenty-eight guests.

During the 15th and 16th century many changes were made and some of the music today dates back to the 16th century.

William B. Miller Speaks On Special School Building Fund Tax at Sigma Meet

William B. Miller

William B. Miller, Superintendent of the Calloway County Schools, appeared before the Sigma Department of the Murray Woman's Club Monday evening to discuss the special school building fund tax which will appear on the May 26th ballot.

The tax increase, which is the first special tax ever proposed for county schools only, would be thirteen cents on each $100 of property assessment subject to school taxation in the Calloway County School District and would be collected over a twenty year period.

Major benefits to be realized from the tax, Miller pointed out, would be the construction of two new elementary schools, one on the east side of the county in the area of Highway 94 and intersection of Pottersville Road and one on the west side in the area of Highway 121 and the intersection of the Johnny Robertson Road and additional facilities for Calloway County High.

Mrs. O. B. Boone, Jr., chairman, presided at the business meeting. Plans were discussed for the Sigma "Catch-Up" Summer Kindergarten. Registration will be on Saturday, May 16 from 9 to 11 a. m. in the kindergarten room at Robertson School. Committees were announced for the beauty contest to be held at the Murray-Calloway County Fair on Monday, July 20th. The Sigma Department sponsors the contest to elect "Miss Calloway County".

SOUND FOOTING

If you want a Firm Foundation — Sound Footing for a lifelong walk here it is. The Foundation this man stands on can serve as compass to guide you; — a blueprint for better living. It is filled with do's and don'ts that groom one for Heavenly company. The Psalmist prayed, "Establish my footsteps in Thy word, and let not any iniquity have dominion over me." This man's foundation points the way to Go. Actually, it is the Book of Life... is your name written there? — It offers peace of mind and comfort of soul to those who take it seriously. Attend church regularly and read of the things it offers one to hold to when one is no longer able to hold the Book... it offers Sound Footing.

AMSTERDAM (UPI)—Despite its tolerance for young visitors, Amsterdam's plan to provide beds for them started at most accidentally last year.

The city made some beds available, to young men only, at slightly less than $1, then as word spread some 300 young people who couldn't be accommodated ended up on judo mats for even less money, then on foam rubber pads on walking paths for about 30 cents.

By then, girls also were admitted and while theoretically there was separation of the sexes, "we were not too strict," a city youth affairs department official admitted.

Twenty-One Names Released

By JOSEPH L. MYLRE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The weather bureau has just its list of girls' names—21 names to Wina—for the canes of the approaching season.

The practice of hurricanes for girls goes to World War II in the Pacific. More than one storm off whirling at the same time.

To avoid dangerous identification, Air Force Navy weathermen adopted practice of giving each separate tag easily under the background of radio transmission.

Says the weather bureau, romantic footnote to the of hurricane naming:

Nothing More Natural "Nothing could be natural for lonely service thousands of miles from their sweethearts, wives favorite pin-up girls."

In 1953, the weather adopted the military custom, its own use, in 1960, concluded the system sound, the bureau set semi-permanent list of 10 of alphabetized names

What New

By JAMES N. MILLER

Central Press Association Correspondent
ANN ARBOR, Mich.—V. McConnell, a psychologist and teacher here at the University of Michigan, named down in history as No. 1 authority on "flatworms."

Such crawlers, scientists called planarians, are found in abundance along fresh lakes and streams, and range in length from half an inch to several inches.

For 13 years McConnell has been conducting a school flatworms in his huge laboratory, attended from time by some 8,000 "students." He has been teaching them to react to flashing light, sudden electric shocks when to creep through maze.

The scientist is studying mysterious chemistry of memory and his fond of using planarians, explaining while it's probably the organism with a human brain, it has an amazing memory for learning.

DAILY NOW, McConnell's associates are probing into the puzzle of how memory is stored and, even more important, "transferred" from flatworm to another when actually does "eat" made memory.

This cannibalistic memory transfer suggests fantastically in speeding learning process. Speculation offers the hope of even discovering a chemical substance which would help humans learn faster and efficiently.

Already the scientist says "there may be a clue answer to the question much can a man learn remember?" He explains, "sider tape recording. The blank tape you have to you can record. Behaviorists now agree that a chemical substance called ribonucleic acid, in your cells, is to learning what tape is to recording. The more RNA you have, the more you can learn."

A STRIKE IN TORNADO ALLEY—Lubbock, Tex., in the so-called U.S. "Tornado Alley," lost a large part of its downtown section (above) when a severe tornado struck late in the day. At least 20 persons were killed, nearly 500 injured, and damage is estimated in millions.

Twenty-One Least Sought After Names Released By Weather Men

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The weather bureau has just issued its list of girls' names—21 from Alma to Wilna—for the hurricanes of the approaching 1970 season.

The practice of naming hurricanes for girls goes back to World War II in the Pacific. More than one storm often was whirling at the same time.

To avoid dangerous errors of identification, Air Force and Navy weathermen adopted the practice of giving each storm a separate tag easily understood over the background crackling of radio transmission.

Says the weather bureau in a romantic footnote to the history of hurricane naming:

Nothing More Natural
"Nothing could be more natural for lonely servicemen, thousands of miles from home, than to select the names of their sweethearts, wives, or favorite pin-up girls."

In 1953, the weather bureau adopted the military custom for its own use. In 1960, having concluded the system was sound, the bureau set up a semi-permanent list of four sets of alphabetized names to be repeated at four year intervals. For 1970 the names are:

Alma, Becky, Celia, Dorothy, Ella, Felice, Greta, Hallie, Isabel, Judith, Kendra, Lois, Marsha, Noreen, Orpha, Patty, Rena, Sherry, Thora, Vicky, and Wilna.

The hurricane season runs approximately from June 1 through Nov. 30. But there is no way of knowing how many storms there will be.

No Individual In Mind

If you are a girl and your name is on the list, don't feel honored or, as the case may be, outraged. The weather bureau tries to get across every year the fact that it does not (repeat does not) pick names with any individual in mind.

Such horribly bad-girl storms as last year's Camille, for example, have been permanently retired from the rotating list. This is the rule for particularly destructive hurricanes on which a lot of research has been done.

Other retired hurricane names of the past range from Carol, Edna, and Hazel of 1954 to Beulah in 1967, a total of 14, not counting Camille.

Roaming in Rome

ROME (UPI)—Rome is an easy city to move around in despite its chaotic traffic and tendency of its streets to change their names abruptly and take unexpected twists.

Public transport is a bargain—8 cents by bus no matter how far the traveler goes. Taxis are less expensive than most places, but traffic jams may unexpectedly pile up costs.

Italians are very helpful to visitors—sometimes too helpful. Rather than admit they don't understand the question or don't know the answer, they may give wrong directions. But they do it with charm, and wandering the streets of Rome itself can be very pleasant.

Bring appetite

COPENHAGEN (UPI)—The best things in life in Copenhagen may not be free—but they are often delicious.

Danes seem to eat all day long and you'll know the reason the first time you taste real Danish pastry and realize what a libel the American version is.

The little open-faced sandwiches which can be bought in inexpensive cafeterias, out of machines or in high-priced restaurants not only taste good, but they are often almost scenic in presentation.

Things You Should Know Before Sending Your Child To A Camp

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI)—Uncle Sam's standards on edibles help prevent you and your children from being poisoned when you sit down to eat.

Uncle Sam's safety requirements help make trips in the family auto safer than they would be without such standards.

State and local laws give reasonable guarantees that schools and the teachers in them are up to snuff—where your child's welfare is concerned.

But if you are sending a child to camp this summer, Uncle Sam has no control over what may happen in the way of maiming or fatal injuries. Nearly half of the states have either inadequate or no regulations regarding guarantees of health and welfare safety at camp.

One state, Michigan, has model requirements—including reasonable checks on the character of camp personnel.

No Exact Count

An estimated eight million youngsters—one out of seven in the six to 16 age bracket—will go to 11,000 camps this summer. These are estimates because no one really keeps track of the exact number.

The lack of federal standards is something a Westport, Conn., man, Mitch Kurman, has been beating the drums about since 1965. That year his only son, David, 15, met death while in a canoe on a Maine river, the Penobscot, that wasn't supposed to have canoes on it. Too rough.

Out of the tragedy came his crusade for a federal youth camp safety law. Senator Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., introduced a bill that would authorize the secretary of health, education and welfare to establish minimum standards.

Nearly a dozen legislators from both parties co-sponsored the bill—S. 809. "But it doesn't move out of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee," Kurman complained.

Another piece of pending legislation relating to camp safety is H.R. 16306—providing for a study of the extent and enforcement of state laws and regulations governing the operation of youth camps.

Many Tragic Reports

There is no shortage of tragic reports—ranging from the pig-tailed girl who suffered a fatal fracture of the skull when thrown from a horse to a child horribly burned when a counselor threw lighter fluid on a fire that seemed to be going too slowly.

At the hearing before a subcommittee of the House of Representatives' Committee on Education and Labor Kurman and others testifying showed that the gap in legislation relating to camp safety is serious.

Dr. John Kirk, then president-elect of the American Camping Association Inc., was one. The ACA members subscribe to good safety standards—but only about one-third of the estimated 11,000 camps belong to the ACA.

While Michigan has the most comprehensive program, Kirk noted that Colorado, Massachusetts and a few other states have adequate programs.

Expert Guidelines

Some guidelines from the safety experts:

—Is the camp director at least 25 years of age, with camping education or training within the past three years and at least 16 weeks of active experience in administration or supervision of an organized camp?

—Does the camp have a carefully written job description for each position to be used in selecting the staff?

—Are the minimum age levels for counselors maintained, according to the type of camp: Day camp, 18; family and resident camp, 19; travel camp, 21.

—Site, facilities, equipment. Is the waterfront area shelving safe, adequately roped and free from treacherous currents and underwater hazard? Are foot trails kept separate from vehicular roads to the greatest possible extent? Are there unusual natural hazards that require special protective measures? (cliffs, swamps.)

VACATION-BOUND—Famed model "Twiggy," wearing knee-length breeches and high leather boots, and her manager-boy friend, Justin de Villeneuve, leave London for a short vacation in Barbados, West Indies. (Cablephoto)

—Are there fire escapes for sleeping accommodations above the ground floor?

Physical Exam A Must

—Is a physical examination by a physician required for all people at the camp within three months before camp starts? In a resident camp, is there a doctor or registered nurse in residence at all times?

—Is a night patrol operated after hours?

—Is all equipment for transportation of campers maintained in top condition? Are all persons operating vehicles qualified under law?

"Concern shown by you and other parents will alert camp directors to the fact that the public is interested in first-class standards," the National Safety Council said.

Evasiveness at answering our questions may be a sign that all at the camp is not high-caliber, says the council.

Such involved investigations, unfortunately, will be necessary until S. 809 is reported out of committee for hearings and acted on.

Kingly trip

PARIS (UPI)—If you want to travel backward in time to the days of the early French kings, you can do so for about 53 cents from Paris.

Catch the Mairie de Montreuil-Pont de Sevres subway to the end of the line (about 13 cents) then catch the No. 171 bus (about 40 cents) to Versailles, 15 miles from Paris.

It took 36,000 workers some 50 years to build what originally was conceived as a hunting lodge for French royalty.

A new line of pantyhose is "guaranteed not to run, no matter what." The run-proof hose is available in four sizes and eight colors. One New York department store sold 1800 pairs in just five days. Other stores report the product from Chadbourne Hosiery Co. "walks off the counter."

For 13 years McConnell has been conducting a school for flatworms in his home laboratory, attended from time to time by some 8,000 "students." He has been teaching them how to react to flashing lights and sudden electric shocks, and when to creep through elaborate mazes.

The scientist is studying the mysterious chemistry of memory and he's fond of using the planarian, explaining that while it's probably the lowest organism with a human-type brain, it has an amazing capacity for learning.

DAILY NOW, McConnell and his associates are probing deeper into the puzzle of how memory is stored and, even more important, "transferred" from one flatworm to another which can and actually does "eat" ready-made memory.

This cannibalistic memory-transfer suggests fantastic possibilities in speeding up the learning process. Specifically, it offers the hope of eventually discovering a chemical substance which would help humans learn faster and more efficiently.

Already the scientist is positive "there may be a chemical answer to the question: how much can a man learn—and remember?" He explains: "Consider tape recording. The more blank tape you have the more you can record. Behavior scientists now agree that a chemical substance called RNA, or ribonucleic acid, in your brain cells is to learning what blank tape is to recording. That is, the more RNA you have, the more you can learn."

This worm turns as it crawls along the "white alley" of a container called a "T-Maze." First, worm has to enter the center runway, then it must choose between entering the white or black alley. If worm enters the white alley it is rewarded by being returned to its "home," a bowl of water, seen left.

"Any deficit in the quantity of RNA available to the nervous system will be reflected in an inability to learn new things. Likewise, anything that interrupts the recording process itself will tend to knock out the memory of what is being taped at the particular moment."

This "tape recorder theory" of memory, according to McConnell, is still only in its pioneer stage but shows great promise. Much work remains before behavior scientists understand the complex chemical story of learning and memory. But their findings have potential practical uses. One is that "many of the types of compulsions, obsession and phobias which now trouble men might be controlled if treated with a combination of RNA and psychotherapy."

UP TO NOW, explains the scientist, the theory that the amount of learning in a man's mind may depend on the amount of RNA in his body has largely been a matter of scientific conjecture. But now from many directions, researchers are closing in on the mystery of the chemistry of memory.

In the worm experiments at Ann Arbor, the flatworms are taught to associate a beam of light with an electric shock. The scientists flash two 100-

Tobacco Farmers Across State Are Searching For Defense For Industry

 Exclusive Report Made By Former Editor Of University of Kentucky Alumni Magazine ***

By WILLIAM ARDERY

(Editor's Note: William B. Arderly, a veteran reporter and former editor of the University of Kentucky alumni magazine, made a searching study of the critical tobacco industry situation and this is his exclusive report for United Press International).

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Frustrated and bewildered by attacks from health authorities and concerned over constantly rising taxes on their product, Kentucky's tobacco farmers are searching for a successful defense of their industry.

One defensive stop has been taken — burley tobacco growers brought suit to prevent the three major television networks from airing anti-smoking messages. The growers contend the messages are designed "to destroy and annihilate" their industry and claim they go beyond a Federal Communications Commission order requiring the broadcast of announcements that cigarette smoking "may" be harmful to health.

But thus far, this litigation is the growers' total defense against what they regard as unwarranted attacks on tobacco smoking.

Kentucky burley has flavor characteristics which make it a base tobacco for most cigarettes, and exports from the state have been increasing slightly.

Exports are only a drop in the bucket compared with domestic consumption and trade restrictions and increased tobacco production abroad are limiting factors. Domestic cigarette consumption declined slightly last year.

Shrugged shoulders and despairing what-can-we-do remarks are the usual response to questions about whether tobacco farmers can switch to other crops without a severe decrease in income.

Tobacco is the wellspring of Kentucky's cash farm income — the financial fuel which powers the state's economy at the rate of $240 - million to $340-million a year and which accounts for between 35 and 40 per cent of total cash receipts from farm marketing in most years.

Create Poverty Areas

Cecil D. Bell, a major Scott County tobacco grower, says, "Phasing out tobacco production would create poverty areas in all the Southeast tobacco states, resulting in heavier federal and state assistance programs with a tremendous loss in federal and state excise revenue from tobacco products."

"The tobacco industry is a legal industry offering a product which has not been found by medical research to be detrimental to health," he asserted.

As for the alternate crops, Bell observed, "In Kentucky alone, about 40 per cent of agriculture income is from tobacco. The loss of this to the state would mean, in an attempt to replace income from tobacco, excessive cultivation of what is now beautiful Blue Grass country, resulting in water runoff, erosion, and destruction of tourist attractions. It would further contribute to the now serious problem of pollution."

In nearby Bourbon County, another tobacco-dependent county, Buckner Woodford, president of the Bourbon - Agricultural Bank & Trust Co., had this to say:

"In the long haul, tobacco may eventually go the way of hemp. The tobacco companies themselves are showing this concern in their rapid diversification."

Cognizant of the importance of national policy to tobacco growers, Woodford added, "It is recognized that there is a plentiful supply of tobacco even under present controls, the loss of which would be disastrous."

"The immediate future is critical. If we lose congressional support during the coming decade, the situation will rapidly deteriorate to the extent that the tobacco farmer should follow the lines of the companies and find a new way to diversify. As of now, such a trend has not emerged."

Moss Subsidy Plan

There has been no enthusiasm among growers over a statement by Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, that he advocates a subsidy for tobacco farmers who want to change crops. If anti-smoking campaigns hurt their business, Moss, chairman of a Senate consumer affairs subcommittee, said he would like to accelerate the campaign against cigarette smoking.

A major element of confusion in the total tobacco picture is that, while levying taxes on the product and encouraging anti-smoking health campaigns, the federal government provides substantial support loans for the crop.

"The same ox that is going us is pulling the plow," said one farmer. The 1970 crop support price, incidentally, has been raised to 68.6 cents a pound and from 65.8 cents last year, when prices on the auction floors were down about five cents a pound to an average of 69.5.

The support price, which is leaved in with acreage controls and which covers all tobacco growing acres, raises the question of individual state tobacco allotments, which many Kentucky growers think discriminate against them.

"One of the things affecting us most adversely," said Woodford, "is having to take allotment cuts year after year when numerous growers raising half acres or less, particularly in Tennessee, are not required to take the cuts."

With improvement in strains of tobacco, development of effective fertilizer and other tobacco-oriented research, the College of Agriculture at the University of Kentucky long has nurtured the tobacco industry.

How much has this research increased the total value of Kentucky tobacco crop during recent decades?

Automobiles give Denver smog blues

By BRAD SMITH

DENVER (UPI)—On a clear day, you can see forever.

The man who wrote those words knew what he was talking about if he was in Denver. On a clear day in the Mile High City, it seems like you can almost see forever.

Trouble is, there aren't that many clear days in Denver anymore.

Item: A study of 65 of the nation's most polluted cities puts Denver among the worst, at 27th.

Item: Denver has the worst weather conditions of any city in the country for smog, except possibly Los Angeles.

Item: Denver has one of the highest ratios of cars per capita of any city in the United States.

Item: Denver's altitude causes the internal combustion engine to work less efficiently, thus pumping more pollutants into the air.

Item: Denver's almost daily sunshine, much bragged about by the Chamber of Commerce, is an essential ingredient of photochemical smog and is detrimental as far as air pollution is concerned.

Denverites used to brag about their view of the Rocky Mountains, only a short distance west. Now, on any given morning, they are lucky if they can see that far.

Main reasons

There are two main reasons for Denver's smog problem: cars and geography.

Denver is situated in a valley, surrounded by higher ground on all sides. Because of this, there is often a temperature inversion hanging over the city.

The inversion is created by colder air that is trapped in a pocket below warmer air and therefore does not rise. The pollution is trapped in this pocket and cannot escape.

Denver residents also have more cars per capita than most other cities in the country, about one car for every two residents.

The engine in a car does not function as efficiently at high altitudes as it does at sea level, due to the smaller percentage of oxygen.

At lower speeds in Denver 50 to 60 per cent more carbon monoxide and 30 per cent more hydrocarbons are produced than at Los Angeles.

Denver has other smog producers — industry — but nothing compares with the seriousness of the automobile problem.

John A. O'Fallon, director of the Denver Building Department and the Denver Air Pollution Control Agency, says the city's fight against pollution from industrial sources has been 99 per cent effective.

Cars, he agrees, are the biggest, and thorniest, problem. "This is the area where I think every air pollution control agency, especially the states, has fallen flat on its face," O'Fallon says.

He is asking the Denver City Council to "take a positive step" in that direction with a city car emission ordinance.

His proposal would penalize any car that can't meet the visual Ringelmann 2 test. Cars that emit a "very visible" exhaust fall into this standard. Joe Palomba Jr., head of the air pollution division of the Colorado Health Department, says it would be nearly impossible for the state to require pollution control devices on older cars.

CANCER CURE?—Dr. Robert J. Huebner (left) of the National Cancer Institute and Dr. Maurice Green of St. Louis University's Molecular Virology Institute look at an electron microscope photo of leukemia virus found in mice. "We can now wipe out cancer among mice," said Huebner. "Our job is to isolate similar genes in humans." They are in St. Louis.

He'll see her true face soon enough

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been engaged to a wonderful girl for over a year. A week ago I called on her unexpectedly, and to my surprise, she refused to see me, and told me to come back in half an hour. She explained later that she wanted time to put her make-up on.

We plan to get married soon, Abby. I love her with or without make-up. Why won't she let me see her like she really is?
ROME, ITALY

DEAR ROME: Before the honeymoon, most girls "make-up" and kiss. After the honeymoon they kiss and make up. Don't pout. You'll see her "like she really is" soon enough.

DEAR ABBY: My husband had a birthday last week and the children and I spent the afternoon baking and decorating a birthday cake for him.

When he came home that evening he told us he had already had a birthday "party" at the office. The children looked so hurt, and I was mad!

It seems the "girls" in his office took it upon themselves to give him a birthday party with cake and ice cream and all the trimmings.

If they want their boss to know they "remembered" him on his birthday, why don't they just buy him a nice card and have everybody sign it?

I told my husband I was going to call his office and tell his "girls" how I felt about this, but he wouldn't let me. However, he didn't say I couldn't write to you because I didn't ask him.

Do you think I am making too much of this? And is there some way to stop this asinine practice?
HURT WIFE

DEAR HURT: Yes, I think you are making "too much" of it, and there is NO way to stop this practice. (I wouldn't call it "asinine.") Your husband's "crime" wasn't eating his cake and having it, too, it was his lack of judgment. Knowing that you're the kind of woman who might become upset over something like this, he should have kept his mouth shut and spared you the anguish.

DEAR "CAN'T SLEEP": It is not too late to profit by your mistake in not being more thoughtful to your mother while she still lived. She does not need you now, but there are homes filled with old folks who would thrill to be paid a little regular attention. Drop in with a few flowers from your garden, magazines you only stack up or throw away, some home made goodies, etc., etc. Devote at least one day a week to take one or two or as many as you can manage in your car for a little spin. Interest your neighbors to join you. Bring the children along on occasion. Old folks love children.

Do this, at first, in reparation, and in time it will become a labor of love. True, of course, we can only have one mother, but, in the family of God we are all one: He loves us, He forgives us.

Cheer up by cheering others up. It is a beautiful formula for sleep and peace.
J. E. B., NEWTON, MASS.

DEAR J. E. B.: And yours is a beautiful letter. Thanks for writing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SWINGING IN THE TOWERS": Your suggested 11th commandment, "Thou shalt not get

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Most stock market advisers believe the decline on Wall Street has been overdone and that the excesses of an 8½-year rising economy have been liquidated, according to the Business and Investment Service. The company says it sees "no indication" of "another 1929" even though "some of our misguided economists are emphasizing it."

Regarding the recent drop in stock margin rates, Phillips, Appel & Walden says that generally "loosening credit in a bear market may be an attempt to increase general participation." The company adds: "It may or may not be a harbinger of other relaxations such as a reduction in discount rates, but historically such actions have led to bull moves in stock markets."

Any rallies developing in the near future will be seized upon "by nervous investors to dump holdings, particularly the questionable ones," according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. As a result, the market should have "a tough time" getting a solid upturn going. The investment adviser suggests "a cautious investment approach" but adds that reasons are "not strong enough for investors to sit completely on the sidelines." They should buy "undervalued, quality issues," it adds.

Gould's position says more and more stocks are beginning to show invulnerability to bad news. Now that "the short side is receiving the heavier attention" the nature of vulnerability is in for a diametrical shift. When markets were overloaded with weak bulls, they became "highly vulnerable to bad news" while showing little or no response to favorable reports, the analyst adds.

NEW YORK (UPI)—With the stock market's gains of the last six and a half years now erased, the International Statistical Bureau says, the market is now "in an excellent position" to reverse direction and begin reflecting the economic upturn "indicated" for later this year. The current bear market reflects "the 1970 pause" in the economy and has yet to reflect "the more favorable outlook" for this decade, the company says.

The skimpy news on hand is hardly enough to fuel a sustained rally, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. But as depressing as the market is, investors shouldn't "throw in the towel" because it is "obvious" that prices will turn up, the analyst adds. A few years from now present stock prices "will no doubt appear to be unbelievable bargains," the institute says.

The stock market currently is "on the defensive" with too many factors weighing against commitment in the stock market, Standar & Poor's Corporation says. The list may be nearing "a bottoming area," but long-term investors would be wise to hold off a bit longer, the company says. It adds: "Once the market has truly stabilized there should be ample opportunity for reinvestment in a calmer atmosphere."

New Forms Of Political Activity Are Taking Shape On U.S. College Campuses

By FREDERICK H. TREESH
United Press International

Political activism on the nation's college and university campuses has increased enormously since the Vietnam War expanded into Cambodia and National Guardsmen killed four students at Kent State University in Ohio.

More than 400 campuses across the country have been ordered closed or have been hit by student strikes, indicative of the level of student concern and its breadth.

Some significance may be attached to the fact that some potentially powerful new forms of political activity are beginning to emanate from the campuses. While strikes and protest marches continue, students and faculty members are developing strategies with real clout—efforts to work within the political system to cause the election downfall of officials whose policies they oppose.

Will Work in Elections
Princeton University and the Harvard Graduate School of Education already have indicated they will give students time off next fall to work during the election campaign. There are reports that Kingman Brewster, president of Yale, and the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame, may do likewise.

A new student organization, the Movement for a New Congress, has emerged with the avowed purpose of developing a nationwide strategy for electing antiwar candidates through political activity by young people working within the system.

At a meeting in New York last weekend, the group elected a national steering committee and announced plans to establish a national headquarters at Princeton and at least eight regional headquarters at campuses across the nation.

More than 10,000 students in Rhode Island are reported to be involved in door-to-door canvassing urging opposition to the Vietnam War.

Significant Factor

To underestimate the potential for this kind of political activism by college youth would be to ignore the impact of the "children's crusade" supporting Sen. Eugene McCarthy's peace candidacy for the presidency in 1968. This was a significant factor in former President Johnson's decision not to seek re-election.

There are more than 7 million students on the nation's 2,500 university college and junior college campuses.

If significant numbers take to electioneering during the summer and fall, they would be of inestimable help to the candidates they back and a worrisome threat to those that were ringing doorbells, gathering petitions and making speeches to defeat.

Caution for physicians

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI)—Doctors should not try to cure sick marriages, says a woman college professor.

Dr. Eleanor B. Luckey, professor at the University of Connecticut and head of the department of child development and family relations, told a group of doctors recently that marriage counseling takes special training.

"No matter how much you try to avoid marriage counseling," she told the doctors, "you will find yourself doing some."

Her advice to the physicians: Avoid such counseling whenever possible, refer questioners to professional counselors and let patients know doctors are not experts in the guidance area.

STATE POLICE PROBES UP FOUR PER CENT IN 1970

Crime in Kentucky continues to rise, according to Public Safety Commissioner William O. Newman, with State Police detectives opening 632 criminal investigations during the first two months of 1970, a four per cent increase over last year.

Arrests for the two months were up also, from an average of 189 to 233 per month.

Burglary continues to head the list of serious crimes, but a recent rash of cattle thefts is demanding more of investigators' time. Narcotics violations also seem to be on the increase, with marijuana leading the way.

Allegations of document fraud, mainly forged checks, brought 15 suspect writings to the document examiner.

"I know if someone with long hair goes by my mother's door, she is against him even before talking to him," one of the short students said.

not more than any other project ever undertaken. However one part of the old church was to remain, the tower, thanks to Dr. Paschall.

Dr. Paschall got the idea of saving it while he was on a trip to Europe, where he saw the towers of churches, which had been bombed during the war, still standing.

The tower was checked out and found to be safe, and the church decided to leave the landmark as Dr. Paschall had suggested.

The only setback was when a small earthquake hit middle Tennessee and after another check, workmen went into the top of the tower and braced it with angle iron.

Dr. Paschall was also instrumental in the design and theme of the stained glass windows.

Each window represents a different theme, and even though to many the theme of the windows is not readily apparent, the colors and hues will fascinate anyone.

The theme of physical nature and the material environment was chosen for the windows on the south side of the building. The theme of the windows on the north depict divine qualities and man's spiritual nature.

The largest and most majestic of all is the baptistry window. It represents Genesis, the evolution of man and his search for God. The theme rises from the dark shades and immobile forms at the bottom into brighter, livelier and more active tones and patterns, depicting man's increasing awareness of God and nature.

Shades of purples and blues then blend into lighter sky blues and pale greens with accents of red, magenta, yellow and gold, and finally ends in the glorious, burst of light from the Resurrection.

On the south side of the main entrance four windows can be found, representing night, day, the sea and the land. The windows on the north depict the story of Abraham, the story of Moses, the birth of Christ, and the tragedy of his death.

The window representing night is deep toned, with dark colors, while the theme of the day window has light, bright colors, topped by the gold and yellow of sunshine.

The sea is shown in dark greyish blues and greens with touches of coral, but as the water surface meets the open air the dark colors give way to lighter blues, greens and lavenders.

The window representing land starts with earth colors at the bottom and moves upward to green, yellow, and orange to suggest vegetation and life. The first window to the left of the main entrance expresses the faith and hope of Abraham with blues and greens that have symbolized these feelings throughout liturgical history.

The window of Moses is done in brown and tan to suggest a desert and gradually become greener and olive near the top with the bruising bush in the middle.

The birth of Christ is shown in the next window by a star in a night sky of blue and pale green. A streak of lavender to define the separation of heaven crosses the window. Pale gold represents the light of the Child in the manger. Red and purple personify the Magi.

The death of Christ is seen in a dramatic, powerful and sorrowing composition, with dark gray in the upper portion to represent the dark sky that appeared during the Crucifixion. Yellow-green streaks emphasize the glory of God. Splashes of red speak of sacrifice and suffering. Gold within the scarlet areas adds vitality to the color pattern and links the Holy Spirit with charity and martyrdom.

Dr. Paschall put in many hours on this project, with a Nashville artist, Goode Davis. During the 2 1/2 years of construction of the new building, the pastor and members were forced to move into the Hume-Fogg High School for their services, as well as many of their Sunday School classes, as they had done twice before.

Dr. Paschall and his wife, Olga, have been in Nashville for the past 14 years, and have raised two daughters, Pam, who is married, and Sandra, who is single.

He has contributed much more to the First Baptist Church, and each of the other churches he has pastored, than could be put on paper, unless one was writing a book. He has also helped the city of Nashville very much.

Very few Sundays go by but what two or three will walk the aisle, after hearing Dr. Paschall's preaching.

And every time that many of the people of Nashville and anyone from Calloway County pass the corner of Seventh and Broadway for many years to come, they will think of Henry Franklin Paschall, a boy born on a farm in Calloway, who rose to become one of the most renowned Baptist preachers in the world.

People in Murray, Calloway County and surrounding areas will get a chance to see and hear Dr. Paschall as well as Billy Graham next Monday night on WSM-TV, Channel 4 at 7 p.m. As Dr. Graham joins Dr. Paschall in the pulpit of the First Baptist Church, in celebration of the church's sesquicentennial and the dedication of the new building.

An open house will also be held Sunday afternoon for anyone wishing to see the church.

Today's Stock Market

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks, up sharply in the early minutes of trading today, surrendered most of the advance after almost two hours. Turnover was moderate.

Initial strength was viewed as nothing more than a technical rally carried over from Thursday's late spurt, Newton Zinder, analyst for E. F. Hutton & Co., said the early gain was a follow through from the previous session, but profit taking and normal pre-weekend considerations induced a little more caution among investors.

Shortly before noon, the UPI market indicator, measuring all stocks traded, was ahead 0.09 percent on 1,385 issues on the tape. Of these, 596 advanced and 489 declined.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 selected blue chips was up 0.33 at 685.12 after jumping more than 7 points in early trading.

Prices were slightly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Of the 887 issues traded, 367 advanced and 285 declined.

Among the most active Amex issues were Stylen down more than a point on 120,000 shares, Equity Funding fractionally higher on 42,000 shares, and Migo Electronic fractionally lower on 38,000 shares.

On the Big Board, most point-sized movers in the electronics were in retreat following sizable advances at the outset. Oils swung in both directions, as did motors, rails, airlines and aircrafts. Steels showed a steady tone, but chemicals lost fractions.

Heavily traded issues including University Computing 3/4 higher, Telex Corp. down 1/4, Litton off 1/4, Gulf Oil down 1/4, Texaco up 1/4, and Xerox 1/4 lower.

Down a point or more in less active turnover were Burroughs 4/5, IBM 2/5, Honeywell 2/5, Fairchild Camera 2/5, American Research 2/5, Avon Products 2/5, Ling-Temco 1/5, Texas Instruments 1/4, and Tek 1/4.

Johnson & Johnson and International Telephone, however, gained more than a point each, while Midwest Oil was up around 2.

RAINS CAUSE FLOODS

HONG KONG (UPI)—Nearly nine inches of rain fell in less than 12 hours today in a storm that flooded parts of Hong Kong and brought landslides that collapsed houses. Girl watchers surveying the spring leg scene will get a colorful color of soft pink, blues, yellows, lavenders, greys and cream colors create the total look. Patterns are flowing. said the council could reprimand Captain Jones, could suspend him up to six months, reduce him in grade, or combine any of the above. He could also be dismissed.

Councilman James R. Allbritten recommended after consultation with the fire Captain Jones be suspended for 30 days from April 24 and be reduced in grade to regular fireman.

It was pointed out that the Fire Captain set a poor example for those under him.

A group of citizens appeared before the council from Bagwell Manor Sub-division protesting the rezoning of a strip of land which lies east of Bagwell Manor and adjacent to it. The rezoning would allow multiple housing so that the Murray Municipal Housing Commission could erect fifty new low rent housing units, primarily for the elderly.

They contended the value of their property would be damaged by its proximity to the housing project. Van Waugh and others spoke against the rezoning.

Mayor Ellis and others contended that the housing projects are well kept, and as attractive as other housing in the city and present no special detriment to any neighborhood. L. D. Miller, Executive Director of the Housing Commission was present in support of the rezoning.

On a vote, the ordinance rezoning the area passed unanimously.

Bids were taken on a supply of pipe for the Murray Natural Gas System. Henry A. Petter won the order with a bid of $25.51 per 100 feet. Other bids were Hoe Supply Co. $25.98; General Pipe & Supply $26.28; Laclede Steel Co. $26.28; Consolidated Pipe & Supply $27.81.

One bid, L. B. Foster Company $24.93, did not meet the specifications of the system according to Wayne Doran Superintendent.

Bids were received on an air compressor for the Sewer Plant with Henry A. Petter also winning this bid of $1,508.00. Only other bidder was Gardner-Denver Company with a bid of $1,794.00.

City Fireman Paul Von Schach resigned from his position as of May 15. His resignation was accepted with regret. James A. Allbritten, Chairman of the Fire Safety Committee said "He has been a good fireman."

Applications are being taken by the City Clerk for those who wish to have a position on the Murray Fire Department.

City Clerk Stanford Andrus told the council that Blue Cross rates have increased nearly fifty percent because of the great demand made on Blue Cross by City Employees.

For the past year Blue Cross collected about $18,000 from the policy and paid out $26,000. The Blue Shield rate will remain the same. The city pays half of the policy and the employees one half.

The Sanitation System will sell an old compactor type truck as surplus.

Councilman Rex Alexander urged the establishment of a "mini-park" in the Poole Hill area of the city to serve that part of town. An area about 80 x 300 is available for the park. The council moved to prepare an area for a paved basketball court and to spend up to $200 for playground equipment.

Acting Fire Chief Jackie Cooper offered the services of city firemen in installing equipment and the basketball goal. The hope was expressed that perhaps some civic organization could take this mini-park as a project and furnish other equipment.

Three councilmen reported to the council that residents had complained about noise from the clean-up shop on Glendale Road.

Freed Tucker was hired on a permanent basis for cemetery mowing.

Councilman Richard Tuck reported that the gas line to the Vanderbilt Chemical Company had been installed and is ready for service. This was a contracted project.

Police Chief James M. Brown's report for the period April 23 through May 13 is as follows: DWI 6, public drunkenness 9, speeding (radar) 9, reckless driving 2, wrong way on one way street 1; unnecessary noise 1; improper passing 1; no helmet 1; disregarding stop sign 1; accidents 40; improper parking tickets 41.

The suit for spring has a free and easy suppleness stressing the mid-length. Great variety is found in jacket shape, tubular tops with round neck lines and straight sleeves are worn with tube skirts and trousers.

Body Count Has Become Ironic Factor In Massacre

By FRANK FROSCH

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (UPI)—As detailed investigations continue into those officers and men charged in connection with the alleged My Lai massacre, the ironic question of body count has become a factor.

Eleven men face the possibility of being court martialed here for crimes ranging from aggravated assault and rape to murder for their alleged actions on March 16, 1968. The death penalty could be imposed on all of them, should they be convicted and should the court so decide.

But attorneys—both military and civilian—who are defending the My Lai 11 here have recognized there is a broader question involved than just specific counts of murder for an alleged incident.

Their heads were turned by a spectacular argument used by New York attorney Henry Rothblatt in his defense of Lt. James Duffy, who was charged with the murder of a Viet Cong prisoner.

Want Large Body Counts Rothblatt argued that pressure was placed on Duffy by his commanding officers who wanted large body counts.

"We faced right up to the question," Rothblatt said. "The government encouraged kills and discouraged taking prisoners. They wanted bodies."

"If anybody taught my client to do anything wrong, it was the Army. The fault is in the Army's training and supervision. In effect, they were saying forget the Geneva Convention. We want gooks. We want bodies."

The military panel hearing Duffy's case, convicted him of murder. But it was horrified to learn its only alternatives for imposing sentences were life imprisonment or death.

Panel Reconsiders The panel reconsidered, Duffy was given a six-month sentence and a small fine. "A traffic ticket," as it were," Rothblatt said.

"Clearly, the court was convinced Duffy was morally, but not legally innocent," Rothblatt concluded.

Not slow to react to Rothblatt's suggestion was
